Volunteer Corner February 2012

Will you help us? Please?
 We need some new bingo prizes. Please consider any of the following: Small stuffed animals; Word search books; Fashion scarves; Illini items; Small snack-size storage containers; and fashion jewelry & accessories. For the nursing home, we can use donations of such things as: Batteries (AA, AAA mostly), newspaper subscriptions, small permanent centerpieces, bird feeders and seed, and, of course money. Spring will arrive. And with that, comes the need for help with garden needs. Pressure treated lumber for the center courtyard's new bed; full size tomato cages; gift certificates to FS Farmtown and plants.

White Out

The February days leading up to the start of Lent can get pretty crazy. New Orleans has Mardi Gras, and the Caribbean Islands celebrate Carnivale. But the town of Viana do Bolo, in the Galicia region of northwest Spain, has a tradition that takes the cake — or rather, that takes the cake flour. This is the Flour Battle, where locals, armed with bags of the powder, douse each other until the entire town is covered in a blanket of white.

The festival is not all throwing flour. The Galicians are Spainards, after all, and they love their music and food. Drummers known as the Folion arrive, arrive wearing elaborate costumes and drumming their region's unique beat. The drums rumble louder and louder, with each region competing for their beat to be heard. Drummers march to a local sports arena where 3,000 locals are waiting to feast, each diner banging his fork and knife on the table to the beat of the Folion. If you're looking for a quiet lunch, this isn't the place.

But of course, the true spectacle is the Flour Battle. The specific origins of this tradition are lost in time, but some speculate that the white flour is symbolic of innocence. During the festival, the entire community is covered and thereby purified for Lent.
